5-302 Groups and Organizations

Revision Dates

11/19/2026, 9/10/1983 (effective 8/10/1983), 5/21/1983 (adopted; effective 7/1/1983)

A. Student, faculty, employee, and outside groups or organizations may be charged with violations of this General Code of Conduct or the Student Code of Conduct as applicable.

B. Such a group or organization and its officers may be held collectively or individually responsible when violations of this General Code of Conduct by those associated with the group or organization have received the tacit or overt consent or encouragement of the group or the organization or its leaders, officers, or spokespersons.

C. The officers or leaders or any identifiable spokesperson for such a group or an organization may be directed by the president of the university to take appropriate action designed to prevent or end violations of this General Code by the group or organization or by any persons associated with the group or organization who can reasonably be said to be acting on its behalf. Failure to make reasonable efforts to comply with such a directive shall be considered a violation of ABOR Policy 5-301(G) (Prohibited Conduct) of this General Code of Conduct, both by the officers, leaders or spokesperson for the group or the organization and by the group or organization itself.

D. Sanctions for group or organization misconduct may include revocation of the use of university facilities for a definite period of time or denial of recognition or registration, as well as other appropriate sanctions, permitted under this General Code of Conduct.
