241.1: PURPOSE AND SCOPE

The purpose of this policy is to provide guidelines for transportation of detainees or persons in custody. Members of this department are responsible to provide safe and secure transportation of detainees, personnel and the general public.

241.2: POLICY

It is the policy of the Albany Police Department to provide safe and secure transportation of detainees, personnel and the general public.

241.3: SUSPECT TRANSPORTATION

- a. Suspects shall be properly restrained and transported in the back seat of a patrol vehicle equipped with safety barrier between the officer and the suspects. The suspects shall be placed in a position to allow the transporting officer the greatest degree of visibility and control of the suspects. In most circumstances, a single suspect shall be placed in the right-rear seat of the transport vehicle. The positioning of the suspect shall allow the suspect the greatest amount of comfort while providing maximum security. To reduce the possibility of positional asphyxia, the suspect should be transported in a seated, upright position.
 - 1) If there is more than one officer in the vehicle, the suspect shall be placed in a position to allow the passenger officer the greatest degree of visibility and control of the suspects. In most circumstances, a single suspect shall be placed in the left-rear seat of the transport vehicle.
- b. Suspects should be transported by patrol vehicles whenever possible. In the event patrol support is not available due to distance or availability, suspects can be transported in cars without cages with two officers/detectives and only one suspect at a time.
 - 1) When two officers are present in the vehicle, the suspect should be placed in a passenger-side seat of the vehicle with the second officer riding in a position that will allow additional physical control of the suspect, if necessary. The specific passenger seat will depend on the vehicle type and the suspect.

- 2) Officers transporting suspects in non-patrol vehicles are encouraged to use leg restraints.
- c. Proper restraining devices (i.e., handcuffs, belly chains or leg restraints) shall be used to restrain the suspect. They shall be applied tight enough to prevent them from slipping off. Handcuffs shall be double-locked. Suspects are never to be restrained to any part of the vehicle.
- d. Prior to transporting a suspect(s), officers shall notify dispatch of the number of suspects and the destination. When transporting a suspect of the opposite sex of the officer, the starting and ending mileage will be given to dispatch or entered into the narrative of the MCT.
- e. More than one suspect may be transported together; however, normally a female suspect should not be transported with a male suspect and a juvenile shall not be transported with an adult.

241.4: RESTRAINTS

- a. All arrested persons and persons in protective custody will be handcuffed as soon as practical prior to being transported.
- b. Unless exceptional circumstances exist, all arrested persons shall be handcuffed with their hands behind their back during transport. Exceptions may include:
 - 1) Physically impaired or otherwise incapacitated persons.
 - 2) Elderly or ill persons arrested for minor offenses.
 - 3) Multiple arrestees with limited handcuffs or transport vehicle limitations.
 - 4) Duration of transport. A transport of several hours may require that a detainee be secured with alternate restraints.
 - 5) Juveniles.
- c. All arrested persons being transported in a police vehicle shall be properly secured with a seat belt when practical.
- d. The use of leg shackles, belly chains and soft restraints is permissible when transporting a prisoner to or from another institution. Factors to consider before using these devices include:
 - 1) Nature of charges against the prisoner.
 - 2) Escape potential of the prisoner.
 - 3) Risk of assault by the prisoner.
 - 4) The sentence the prisoner is serving or may be subject to serve.
 - 5) Duration of transport.
- e. No person shall be handcuffed to any part of a vehicle.
- f. No detainee shall be left unattended or out of sight/sound while in a vehicle.
- g. The use of the WRAP may be employed for combative, violent or assaultive suspects in custody. Special care shall be used to avoid positional asphyxia with subjects detained in the WRAP.

- h. When transporting mentally ill or mentally disturbed persons, provided that person is being detained as a danger to themselves or others, or where that person is in custody for a criminal offense; the officer shall document the type of restraint and method of application used during the transport of any mentally ill or mentally disturbed person in his/her report.

241.5: VISUAL OBSERVATION

- a. Transporting officers will visually observe suspects in their custody at all times.
- b. A female officer will accompany female suspects on any trip of extended length or greater than 8 hours when practical.

241.6: MEALS

- a. On any extended trip where it is necessary to make rest or meal stops, the locations will be chosen at random.
- b. Public facilities should be avoided, and drive-through facilities used whenever possible.

241.7: ASSISTANCE TO OTHERS

- a. Transporting officers shall not stop to render law enforcement assistance along the transport route unless an extreme emergency exists. An extreme emergency would present an immediate substantial risk of serious physical injury or death to an individual. Whether the officer is justified to stop or not, an attempt shall be made to immediately contact the appropriate local agency and notify them of the following:
 - 1) The identity of the officer(s);
 - 2) The officer's status;
 - 3) The nature and location of the incident.
- b. The transporting officer will only remain at the scene of an emergency until proper assistance has arrived.
- c. Transporting officers shall not become involved in a pursuit, roadblock or other situation which might create a risk of harm to the suspect.

241.8: ESCAPES

- a. If a suspect escapes while being transported, the following persons shall be immediately notified by the transporting officer:
 - 1) Albany Police Dispatch and/or 9-1-1 Call Center (immediately);
 - 2) On duty Shift Supervisor;
 - 3) Immediate police jurisdiction;
 - 4) Surrounding police jurisdictions.

- b. The following reports shall be submitted by the transport officer(s):
 - 1) Police incident report;
 - 2) Memorandum, via chain of command, to the Chief of Police outlining the details of the escape;
 - 3) If equipment is damaged or missing, City of Albany Property Damage/Loss Report;
 - 4) Any other reports as deemed necessary by the Shift Supervisor.
- c. Other actions to be taken:
 - 1) Notification to the police agency in the jurisdiction of the last known address of the escapee;
 - 2) Teletype message to the surrounding police jurisdictions.

241.9: SUSPECT COMMUNICATION

- a. Suspect rights to communicate with attorneys, family, clergy and/or others will not normally be permitted during transports.
- b. If special circumstances arise which, in the officer's opinion, necessitates an exception to the above restriction, the officer may allow the suspect to communicate with another person. It will be the responsibility of the officer to monitor any such communication and make a notation in his/her report.

241.10: TRANSPORT TO OR FROM OTHER DETENTION FACILITIES

The transporting officer will be aware of and follow the procedures at state institutions, forensic hospitals, mental health units, and county correctional facilities. The following policy will apply to all detention facilities:

- b. The transporting officer will advise receiving officer of any potential medical or security issues.
- c. Restraints will only be removed when instructed to by a receiving officer.
- d. The transporting officer will be responsible for the exchange of all necessary signatures and paperwork for the transfer.

241.11: MEDICAL FACILITIES

When a suspect is transported to a medical facility for treatment, the following will apply:

- a. The officer shall ensure that the suspect is isolated from other patients and not left unattended or permitted to escape his/her immediate control.
- b. If the suspect is admitted, the transporting officer shall notify the Watch Supervisor.
- c. The transporting officer will not leave the suspect at the medical facility until relieved by another officer or directed to by a supervisor.

- d. The transporting officer will remove the restraints only when it is necessary and when requested by the medical staff.
- e. When a suspect is admitted to the hospital, the decision to assign a guard will be initially made by the Watch Supervisor. The final decision will be made by the Operations Captain.

241.13: DOCUMENTATION-INTERFACILITY TRANSPORTATION

If a suspect is transported to court, any court appearance papers will be furnished to the court of jurisdiction by the transporting officer at the time the suspect is delivered. No documentation will be required when a suspect is transported to the Albany Municipal Court.

241.14: SECURITY INFORMATION

- a. Information regarding any potential security risks presented by the suspect will be documented and sent to the facility by the transporting officer.
- b. The officer will complete any paperwork requested by the receiving facility.

 - 1) If, in the patrol supervisor's opinion, the prisoner poses a safety or flight risk, the supervisor shall complete the form and affidavit and email them to the court for review by the judge, who will review the assessment and authorize physical restraints if the judge feels they are warranted.
 - 2) A copy of the completed form shall also be emailed to the Records Section for retention.
- e. If authorized by the judge, the prisoner will remain in physical restraints during the court appearance.
 - 1) If, at any point during the court appearance, an officer observes behavior by a prisoner which gives the officer concern over safety or potential flight, the officer should alert the court and obtain verbal authorization to place the prisoner in physical restraints.
 - 2) Nothing in this policy is meant to preclude an officer from taking appropriate steps to protect their own safety or the safety of the public.
