

ADMINISTRATIVE MANUAL

ADM-110 – ORGANIZATIONAL STRUCTURE

Amends/Supersedes: ADM-110 (02/05/2024)

Date of Issue: 08/11/2025

I. GENERAL

- A. The Newport News Police Department is structured to organize resources to provide efficient and effective service to the community in accordance with its mission statement.
- B. This policy establishes communication, coordination, and cooperation procedures among all agency functions and personnel. [12.1.4]
 1. Coordination and cooperation between agency functions will follow the chain of command reporting lines outlined in this policy and ADM 120 Command Protocol.
 2. Day-to-day communications regarding department business will occur between appropriate personnel.
 3. Requests for resources beyond day-to-day functions should go through the chain of command unless directed by the Chief of Police or an appropriate assistant chief.
 4. Unless otherwise noted in this policy:
 - a. Bureaus (Patrol Operations, Administrative Services and Investigative Services) are supervised by an assistant chief.
 - b. Divisions are supervised by a captain or a non-sworn equivalent.
 - c. Sections and sectors are supervised by a lieutenant or a non-sworn equivalent.
 - d. Units are supervised by a sergeant or a non-sworn equivalent.
 - e. Offices are staffed by non-supervisory personnel.
 - f. Specialized units are not staffed full time. They are comprised of personnel trained for specific tasks and circumstances. Specialized unit participation guidelines are found in individual unit standard operating procedures and ADM-350 Assignment & Transfers, Sworn Personnel.
- C. The formal organizational structure of the department, depicted in an organizational chart, is available to all employees on the common drive and PowerDMS. The structure is reviewed annually to ensure compatibility with department goals. [11.1.1]

NOTE: The Chief of Police may create or relocate units or positions and not reflect the changes in the formal organizational structure if they are temporary or exploratory. For this policy, changes will be considered temporary if they last less than one year from the effective date of the change. Exploratory units or positions will be incorporated into the formal organizational structure after the functions have been evaluated and become permanent. Changes regarding the chain of command will be addressed when the change is made.

II. ORGANIZATIONAL STRUCTURE
